

Bang for the Buck in Boston!

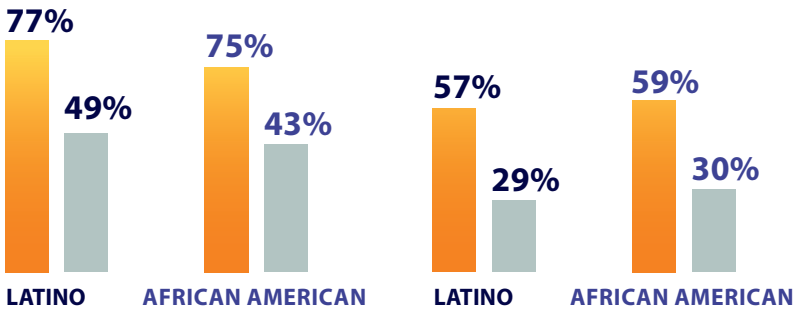

When it comes to test scores, high school and college graduation rates, Boston's Charter public school students are beating the odds!

Boston Children Proficient or Advanced

MATH
2014 MCAS

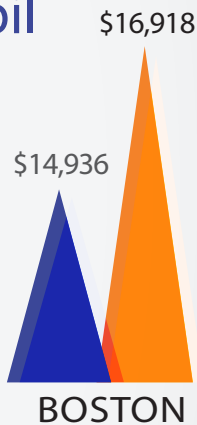

ENGLISH
2014 MCAS

● Charters ● District

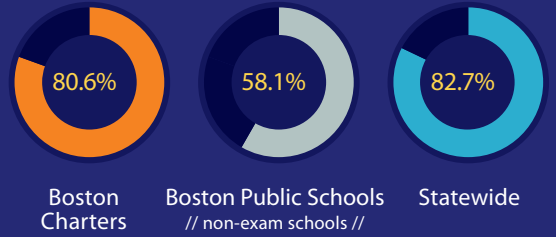

Spending per Pupil

Charters –
Where high academic impact meets high taxpayer value

● Charters
● District

High School Graduates // within five years //

College Graduates // high school graduates //

With results like these, it's easy to understand why there are 13,000 children on waiting lists for a charter seat in Boston. For many families, charter public schools are the preferred choice.

A 2013 Stanford University report said students in Boston public charter schools are learning at double the rate of Boston district students, making two years worth of academic progress in English and math for every year they're enrolled in a charter.

Stanford University

